From the Chief Editor

It gives us great pleasure to present to readers, the Volume 11, Issue 1 of the Pragyaa: Journal of law, which is the product of our correspondence, collaboration and contribution over the years by the esteemed scholars whose scholarly research articles are published in our Journal.

This Volume of the Pragyaa is fully immersed with publications which have attracted high quality submissions with variety of research topic undertaken by Indian legal fraternity. We are pleased to present fourteen articles which in themselves are putting forth better understanding of a range of issues which are of contemporaneous importance.

The objective of Pragyaa: Journal of law is to publish up-to-date, high-quality and original research papers along with relevant and insightful reviews. As such, the journal aspires to be vibrant, engaging, accessible, and at the same time makes it integrative and challenging.

We offer scholars to contribute their research work, either individually or collaboratively for their own development and simultaneously for making the journal a leading journal among legal fraternity.

We acknowledge the support of our faculty advisors, the hard work of editorial staff and the interest shown by the contributors and readers that we have been able to come out successfully year after year with each volume. I express my sincere thanks to all our contributors, members of Advisory board and referees whose untired efforts made the publication of the journal possible

PRAGYAAN: JOURNAL OF LAW

Peer Review Policy

Peer review is an integral part of our research journal. All the research papers will be sent to Reviewer after concealing the name of the author and any other identification mark in this regard. We ensure that Peer review will be fair, honest and maintain confidentiality.

The practice of peer review is to ensure that only good research papers are published. It is an objective process at the heart of good scholarly publishing and is carried out by all reputable scientific journals. Our referees play a vital role in maintaining the high standards and all manuscripts are peer reviewed following the procedure outlined below.

Initial manuscript evaluation The Editor first evaluates all manuscripts. It is rare, but it is possible for an exceptional manuscript to be accepted at this stage. Manuscripts rejected at this stage are insufficiently original, have serious scientific flaws, have poor grammar or English language, or are outside the aims and scope of the journal. Those that meet the minimum criteria are normally passed on to at least 2 experts for review.

Type of Peer Review: Our Policy employs blind reviewing, where both the referee and author remain anonymous throughout the process.

How the referee is selected Whenever possible, referees are matched to the paper according to their expertise and our database is constantly being updated.

Referee reports: Referees are asked to evaluate whether the manuscript. Follows appropriate ethical guidelines - Has results which are clearly presented and support the conclusions - Correctly references previous relevant work.

Language correction is not part of the peer review process, but referees may, if so wish, suggest corrections to the manuscript.

How long does the review process take? The time required for the review process is dependent on the response of the referees. In rare cases for which it is extremely difficult to find a second referee to review the manuscript, or when the one referee's report has thoroughly convinced the Editor. Decisions at this stage to accept, reject or ask the author for a revision are made on the basis of only one referee's report. The Editor's decision will be sent to the author with recommendations made by the referees, which usually includes verbatim comments by the referees. This process takes one month. Revised manuscripts may be returned to the initial referees who may then request another revision of a manuscript or in case second referee the entire process takes 2-3 months.

Final report: A final decision to accept or reject the manuscript will be sent to the author along with any recommendations made by the referees, and may include verbatim comments by the referees.

Editor's Decision will be final. Referees are to advise the editor, who is responsible for the final decision to accept or reject the research paper for publication.
