

FROM THE DESK OF CHIEF EDITOR

It is a matter of great pride for us, to present to the readers, the Second Edition of the IMS Law Review: Student's Edition of 2021, which is symbolic of the success of the First Edition. Our first attempt was received by the readers with such great appreciation and admiration that it made our task for the Second Edition paradoxically easy and difficult. On one hand we know that our efforts are rightly striking our goals and we need to proceed enthusiastically on the same path, on the other hand we are now laden with a responsibility to keep the trust of our readers intact by presenting a second edition that's not just what they expect but something that far exceeds their expectations. And trust us, that's what we have accomplished this time.

Our Faculty Editorial Board and the Student Editorial Board have worked uncompromisingly on the Second Edition to bring to you, our dear readers, what is best, from the best and in the best possible form. Though this journal's key focus is to provide the students a fair chance to get their hard work in research writing published, we also are mindful of the content we provide to the readers. We as editors aim at presenting the articles to you all, which have the potential to be a significant addition to your knowledge and learning.

We hope that this Second Edition of the IMS Law Review: Student's Edition will be another step forward in our journey together, towards our united aim i.e., promoting student's academic excellence in the field of legal research and writing.

In Solidarity

FROM THE DESK OF FACULTY EDITORIAL BOARD

IMS Law Review: Student's Edition (IMSLRW) is a non-profit, student reviewed annual publication journal. Law students all over face a paradoxical situation. On one hand they are encouraged by their esteemed institutions and faculties to be better in academic research and writing, while on the other hand, not many journals are willing to include their novice attempts in their publications. We at IMS Unison University School of Law believe, that students have the massive yet unexplored capabilities of brilliant academic research which needs to be polished at our ends. For this very noble aim we have established IMS Law Review Student's Edition, exclusively intended for students, which will provide them with an opportunity to continue healthy discourse regarding the relationship of law and public policy in the current scenario. It seeks to create a platform where there is a flow of ideas and thoughts regarding issues mutually relating to law and the contemporary legal issues.

Since the Journal is dedicated wholly to the students, what can be better than to have an editorial board that is comprised of students themselves. This initiative thus, does not only provide opportunities to the young and brilliant minds of the student researchers but also give the students a unique experience of honing their skills as editors. At this point we would like to elaborate on the tireless efforts of our current Student Editorial Board in bringing to you the Second Edition of the Journal. Their outstanding contribution and commitment to the task has led the Journal to aim even higher in achieving what once was just a dream. As it is rightly said that it is the editor who adds the colour to the first draft, we applaud the skills of our Student Editorial Board in presenting to you all a myriad of academic research articles in their best possible form.

We hope that the readers will find this well-crafted source of academic writings helpful in refilling their reservoirs of knowledge.

Wishing all the readers success and health!
